GREAT NORTHERN TO ENTER EASTBAY

TWO SUSPECTS HELD IN SEARCH FOR MAD SLAYER

LETTER CLUE FOUND IN EAST

NEW YORK, June 20.—UP—The search for the maniacal murderer itself a jumble of developments—the arrest of two suspects, the receipt of a new death threat and a seemingly authentic clue supplied by a pastor.

It was as difficult to decode these several happenings in the light of their comparative importance as it has been to solve the curious cryptograms decorating the letters in which the killer has boasted of his intention to add seven more victims to the death list that already includes Joseph Mozynski and Noel Sowley.

New York authorities, taunted for days by the lunatic, were most cheered by the arrest in Philadelphia of Joseph Oswald Clarke, 34, of Brooklyn who escaped a year or more ago from the Creedmore hospital for the insane.

Gives Battle

"You won't take me back" Clarke cried as he battled fiercely with detectives who had entered a rooming house where the suspect's packed bags gave indication of intended flight. But Clarke proved himself a poor prophet. He was overcome, hastily arraigned, informed that he had waived extradition and at 5 p. m. he was back in New York to face prolonged questioning concerning the crimes he insists he did not commit.

Other developments may be summarized as follows:

Newark police arrested a man who described himself as John D. Galavo. It was alleged that he answered the description of Joseph Ustica, insane murderer who escaped in May from the Kings Park L. I. asylum.

New Letter

A threatening letter, bearing the now-familiar cabalistic signature of an inverted "V" a "V" and "3 X" mailed special delivery from New York, was reecived by John Moszynski of Philadelphia, brother of the first man slain by the mad assassin. Although it was suspected the communication might not be genuine police have arranged to provide the Philadelpian with a constant guard.

Finally, the Rev. Joseph V. Cooper, minister of the Emanuel church Brooklyn, furnished information concerning a man whose handwriting is closely similar to that of the killer. Cooper's suspect described himself as a former United States secret service agent and at one time directed a boys' club at the church.

The Whilom agent, if such he were, disapeared seven or eight weeks ago after exhibiting a number of hallucinations.

For Coroner

A. B. HINKLEY WINS SUPPORT IN CAMPAIGN

Dr. A. B. Hinkley, candidate for coroner has been spending some time in the upper end of the county making a canvass of that section, renewing old friendships, and making many new friends. He returned last evening from one of these trips, and reports that the reception he has received, and the volunteer support that has been offered him, is more than encouraging.

Dr. Hinkley is one of the best known citizens in Richmond, and at all times has taken a very active part in civic affairs. His experience in public life and dealing with individuals particularly fits him for the office to which he aspires.

In 1927 Dr. Hinkley was appointed as a member of the city council, and in 1929 he was elected for a six year term, by one of the largest majorities ever giaen a municipal candidate.

Dr. Hinkley is president of the Richmond Lions' club and has occupied offices in several fraternal organizations. His civic and fraternal interests have given him acquaintance throughout the county. He is qualified by 17 years of experience in his profession to perform the duties of the office of coroner.

His fraternal connections include Richmond lodge of Elks, of which he is past exalted ruler; Acantha Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, of which he is a past patron; Aahmes Temple of the Mystic Shrine, Harbor lodge of Masons. Richmond Pyramid of Sciots, Onetah Tribe of Red Men; Honor Post Veterans of Foreign Wars; Richmond Post of the American Legion and the United Veterans of the Republic.

Taxpayers At Meeting Here

Last night at Hotel Carquinez, Richmond, W. W. Scott as chairman of highways and bridges of the Contra Costa division of California Taxpayers' association was host to a delegation from the Alameda county division of the Taxpayer's association.

The meeting, it is understood was for the purpose of the neighboring tax divisions acquainting each other with road conditions in the respective counties.

It is understood that the proposed state and county improvements of the Broadway Tunnel road came up for discussion.

Scott's guests were T. Mervyn Kaney, secretary of the Alameda division, Clement Miller, chairman of the Alameda county section on roads and bridges, Ralph A. Krapp chairman of Alameda county division, Franklyn W. Oatman, Wilson S. Gould, members of Alameda county division, J. B. McFarland, secretary of the Contra Costa division.

THE WEATHER

Fair and mild today; moderate west winds. Fair Sunday.

What You Should Know

Today at noon will end the first lap of the fight of the political racketeers, better known as the courthouse ring, against the right of American citizens to aspire for office without hindrance.

Men in different parts of the county, just the minute it was heard they were candidates, have been threatened with the loss of their livelihood, the ruining of their business, the turning of their family on the street. Even friends of candidates who had volunteered to circulate petitions have been pulled off.

Every means imaginable have been used. Statements have been made that candidates have been offered money to withdraw; that others have been given the promise of deputyships. Every wile known to the political racketeers has been put in effect and in some cases, to effect.

And yet this is supposed to be a free country, where the constitution gives the man the right to happiness and liberty, where he is given the right of suffrage, the right to aspire to office and serve the people.

In the face of all this underground and unfair fight that has been going on for the past two months, there are some of the candidates who have come out of the mess with their heads up, with smiles on their faces, with the belief that the general public loves a fair fighter, and they are in the fight to the end.

Among these candidates are:

J. P. STROM, for Sheriff.

DR. A. B. HINKLEY for Coroner.

CHARLES F. DONNELLY for Public Administrator.

CLYDE LAIRD for County Engineer.

These men are torchbearers for the people of the county. They will carry the message of fair play to every section. They are entitled to your support.

Before the time limit for filing of nominating petitions expires today there may be other candidates, if what has been heard is correct.

Whether Tsar N. Calfee, attorney of Richmond, will file for District Attorney, is not known at this time. Some time ago he secured petitions from the county clerk's office and announced that he was a candidate for office. He had cards printed and distributed them, he informed friends of his decision.

However, for the past two weeks rumors have been flying thick and fast concerning Calfee. Some of them are unbelievable.

One is to the effect that he will not file his petition today, and in return has been promised an appointment as deputy district attorney.

Another is that some time ago he signed the nominating petition of his opponent, and has since led his friends to believe he was still in the race.

Calfee has thousands of friends in the county, who will not believe these rumors.

The RECORD - HERALD does not believe them for it has faith in the sincerity of Calfee.

It cannot believe and will not believe at this time that he has betrayed his constituency in this county.

It cannot and will not believe at this time that he would prostitute himself to the extent that he would withdraw from the race in consideration of a promise of a deputyship in the office of the District Attorney.

It cannot and will not believe at this time that he has signed the nominating petition of his opponent.

It cannot and will not believe at this time that he has succumbed to the wires that have been pulled, and to the threats that have been made.

It cannot and will not believe at this time that he has been recreant to a trust that has been reposed in him, and that he will become the Judas Iscariot of county politics.

And it will not change its opinion until such time as facts and actions may demonstrate to the contrary.

Today at noon, will tell part of the tale.

The names on some of the nominating petitions will be an entire story in themselves.

What developments may take place soon afterwards will unfold another story.

All of them may be intensely interesting. They will be stories of intrigue, of double dealing, of the at-

CHARLES F. DONNELLY

CHARLES F. DONNELLY SEEKS PUBLIC ADMINISTRATOR POST

One of the last candidates to throw his hat in the political ring yesterday was Charles F. Donnelly of this city when he filed with the county clerk at Martinez, his nominating papers for the office of public administrator .

Donnelly is well known in every town and hamlet in the county, and is very popular with all classes of people.

Some time last year he had the misfortune to be afflicted with gangrene, which caused the amputation of one of his legs. He has entirely recovered his health from this trouble, and has started out to make an energetic campaign, that is characteristic of him.

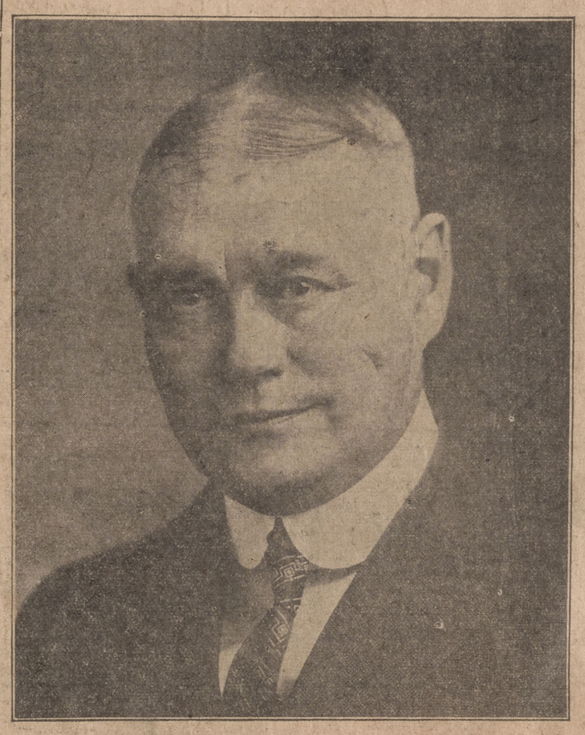
Donnelly has been a resident and taxpayer of the county for 24 years, and for 16 years was superintendent of the northern division of the Key System Transit company, with headquarters at Richmond.

The knowledge and experience in business that he gained while he occupied this position, and the additional knowledge he gained while he served as coroner for eight years particularly fits him for the office he is now seeking.

When Donnelly is elected he will be public administrator not only in name but will be public administrator in fact.

In fraternal matters, the candidate has always been a moving spirit, has served as president of the Richmond Lions club, is an Elk, is secretary of the Moose lodge and is past district deputy grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias.

Out For Sheriff



J. P. STROM IS CANDIDATE FOR THE POST OF SHERIFF

When the nominating petition of J. P. Strom for the office of sheriff was filed at Martinez late yesterday afternoon, a new element entered the politics of the county, as a thorough business man entered the field. His entry into the fight came after much consideration, and it was only after the strong requests of friends in all sections of the county that he consented to make the race.

Strom is an experienced business man. He has conducted an automobile business of his own for the past 16 years in Richmond, and is county distributor for the car he handles.

Outside of the fact that he is a trustee of the Richmond Union high school district, a district which handles nearly half a million dollars a year, and in which position he has served with credit to himself, his present move is his first entry in the county political field.

Strom is a firm believer in the idea that business principles should be applied just as closely in the conduct of public office, as is true in private business. He stands for economy, and pledges himself that he will be a servant of the people, and not otherwise.

His campaign in the county will be a thorough one. He will personally see the voters and ask for their suffrage.

Strom's fraternal membership includes the Masons, the Sciots, Shriners, Elks and Eastern Star.

SHELL PLANT CONTRACTS LET

MARTINEZ, June 20.—With several contracts awarded already and others to be let in the near future, construction on the $5,000,000 chemical plant of the Shell Chemical company on the 613 acre site at Nichols, will be started immediately.

According to official announcement, the plant will employ 300 men steadily, and during construction periods, as many as 1500 men will be employed.

The unit, a nitrogen fixation plant is to have an output of 60 metric tons daily of fixed nitrogen, the equivalent of 80 short tons of ammonia.

Engineers are already on the ground to start construction on the plant which is to be located at Brose station on the San Francisco Sacramento railroad. The site is also susceptible to service by the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific railways while the location also affords water-front facilities. Power facilities are available nearby, and natural gas lines are close.

Production of fertilizer bases is to get under way at the plant early in spring and will supply demands of California agriculturists and also of the Oriental trade.

Clifford Tucker On Portland Trip

Clifford Tucker of the Key System has motored to Portland for a month's vacation.

Bus Line To Be Cancelled

MARTINEZ, June 20.—Service by the Greyhound Motors corporation between Stockton and Oakland, via Martinez will be discontinued unless the company secures a permit to operate its stages over the Franklin canyon highway, according to advices received by District Attorney A. B. Tinning from the Railroad Commission, today.

The commission advised Tinning that the stage company says it is losing money on the Stockton service which faced opposition both from Contra Costa county and railroads.

The use of busses on the canyon highway has been consistently opposed by county officials, and it was said today that any effort to route the line by that road will be fought strenuously.

George Upham To Visit East

George Upham of 818 Macdonald avenue will leave Sunday on the Pacific Limited for Glenwood springs, Colorado where he will attend the State Life Insurance convention. Two special pullmans will be provided for the California members.

MRS. WILES BETTER

Mrs. E. W. Wiles, 709 Thirty-eighth street, is convalescing at the Cottage hospital from an operation for appendicitis recently undergone. She is reported to be progressing nicely.

PERMISSION GRANTED TO RAILWAY

Victorious in its battle it has waged for many a decade, the Great Northern railroad was granted access to northern California and an entry to the San Francisco bay region yesterday.

According to United Press dispatches received from Washington the Interstate Commerce Commission granted the Great Northern and Western Pacific railways permission to proceed with their Klamath Falls-Bieber-Keddie extension program.

More than 200 miles of new track will be constructed, which will connect the southernmost terminal of the Great Northern at Klamath Falls and the Western Pacific at Keddie.

Spend Much

More than $14,000,000 will be spent in northern California by the railroads, probably starting next month, it was said.

Within a year, officials of the Western Pacific said, trains of the two companies will be operating in the bay region, connecting up with the northern end of the state.

The application was granted by the commission over the bitter opposition of the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific railways.

Plan Construction

The companies plan the following construction:

From Klamath Falls the Great Northern will build 88 miles of

CLYDE LAIRD FOR ENGINEER

Clyde Laird, for the past seven years investigator for the district attorney's office, and a licensed surveyor and engineer of years' standing, will file his nominating papers this morning with the county clerk for the office of County Engineer.

The candidate is a Native Son, having been born in Siskiyou county, and has been a resident of Contra Costa since 1918.

Laird brings with him in his candidacy a wealth of experience that will prove invaluable to the people of the county in the conduct of the office to which he aspires.

His experience covers work with the state highway commission, with the telephone company as location engineer, with contracting firms in road engineering and street improvement, thus making him familiar with all types of pavements.

During the late World war he was engaged in war time engineering for the government.

Laird is an indefatigable worker, believes in doing what is to be done, without regard to the hours it takes. In his work as investigator and as engineer he has made a record for himself of which any man can well feel proud.

The work of the candidate during the past several years has taken him into every section and nook of the county, and he is familiar with the roads of the county and their needs.

Laird is a firm believer in spending the money of the taxpayers at home, and promises that wherever possible, materials for road work will be purchased in Contra Costa county.

Rooker To Go To Rotarian Meet

Mr. and Mrs. George N. Rooker of Mira Vista left recently for Chicago where Rooker will attend the national convention of the Rotary club, as a delegate from the Richmond unit. Mrs. Rooker will remain for a several week's visit in the east and Rooker will return home immediately after the closing of the convention.

BOBBY JONES IN BRITISH GOLF TITLE WIN

HOYLAKE, Eng., June 20.—UP—Once again the golfing wizardry of Robert Tyre Jones, Jr., has won him the British open golf championship.

The Atlantan triumphed over 60 contenders today, capturing the title for the third time with an aggregate of 291 strokes.

And once again American golfers carried off the lion's share of the honors, Leo Diegel and MacDonald Smith tying for second-place with 293, Horton Smith tying Fred Robson, best of the British contestants, at 296, and Jim Barnes tying with Arch Compston at 297.

Thus five of the first seven places went to golfers from the United States after the final day's play of 36 holes over the Royal Liverpool course.

Bobby Jones won the championship as he has won so many others, setting the early pace and letting the others break their hearts trying to match it.

One after another the leaders tired and failed, so the Atlantan became the first man to win both the British amateur and open crowns in the same year since John Ball turned the trick 40 years ago.

For a brief time today it looked as though Arch Compston, the towering British pro, might succeed in keeping the cup from its annual journey over-seas. Compston shot a record-breaking 68 this morning to lead Bobby by one stroke at the end of the third round.

But in that one great round, Archie shot his bolt, and he finished with an 82, and his game completely gone to pieces.

Jones weakened for a moment himself, in the afternoon, where a strange seven marred his card at the long eighth hole.

Oaks Again Beat Ducks Two To One

SAN FRANCISCO, June 20—UP The Los Angeles Angels continued their drive toward first place of the Pacific Coast league today when they defeated the San Francisco Seals, 7 to 4, in the feature of the afternoon games.

The Angels scored two runs in the first inning and held that lead until the eighth, when they scored five more and cinched the game.

Hollywood trounced the San Francisco Missions 19 to 5. In the eighth inning, after the Sheiks had more runs than needed for victory, they scored 11 runs.

Overcoming an early lead of their opponents, Oakland defeated the Portland Beavers, 2 to 1.

The cellar position of the Richmond City Twilight league is still the undisputed property of the Standard Oil nine, following a forfeited game to the Lions club last night.

House Passes Boulder Dam Bill

WASHINGTON, June 20.—UP—Boulder Dam, the great Colorado river power and irrigation project, moved a step nearer completion today when the house approved and passed the $68,000,000 deficiency bill, carrying a hotly contested appropriation of $10,600,000 for starting construction of the project.

The bill now goes to the senate where Arizona members expect to renew their fight to block the appropriation pending enactment of safeguards to their state's rights. Opponents in the house, led by Rep. Douglas, Dem., Ariz., fought bitterly, first to have the Boulder Dam appropriation ruled out of order, and second, to gain an amendment which would have practically defeated the appropriation's purpose.

Missing Pair Believed Dead

CARMEL, June 20.—UP—Death may have terminated the honeymoon adventure of a young Carmel, California, geologist and his wife, Royal Canadian Mounted police said today, according to word received here. William Albee and his wife started into the north woods last month planning to treke to Fairbanks. They have been missing for a week, and a search by land and air has been fruitless.

Why Enumerators Earned Their Pay

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—A young woman census worker asked Robert H. Fessler the birthplace of his wife. "New Mampshire," was the answer. "I mean what state," the enumerator amplified, "The state of New Hampshire," Fessler repeated patiently. "Oh yes. That is in Massachusetts.

Prevention Of Fires At Oil Fields Studied

OKLAHOMA CITY,—Methods of eliminating fire hazards in a section drenched with the oil of wild gushers will be studied here next September by engineers of the National Fire Protective association.

The engineers will visit Oklahoma at the invitation of State Fire Marshal C. R. O'Neal who admits the fire danger from outlaw wells in the huge Oklahoma City oil field is great.

Publicity that the city field received because of its two wild gushers—the famous Mary Sudik and Sigmon wells—has caused officials of fire fighting organizations to ponder on the best way to guard against fire should a similar situation arise in another field.

Spraying oil from these two gushers, one of which spouted great clouds of crude into the air for 11 days, caused scores of oil field roughnecks to hastily assume the role of fire fighters.

The oil spray, which covers scores of acres in every direction from an outlaw well, creates a danger not only to property but also imperils the lives of those who must work night and day to cap the oil flow.

Should a carelessly lighted match or fire ignite the well workmen would face a tremendous task in extinguishing the blaze which would probably spread quickly, endangering the entire field and portions of the city, since the tiers of derricks now extend to Oklahoma City's backdoor.

Friction of sand or rock against the casing of a well would also ignite the oil, field workers say.

Operators have not yet found an effective way of guarding against outlaw gushers, despite precautions taken at the advice of veteran drillers and state officials.

YALE CREW IN VICTORY OVER HARVARD 8

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 20.—UP—Yale today won the annual Yale-Harvard varsity eight-oared rowing race, the most ancient of American intercollegiate sport.

Yale won by four lengths.

The official time was 20 minutes 9 2-5 seconds.

The Blue shell had a good four lengths lead as it crossed the finish line at the railroad bridge less than 8 seconds behind the course record of 20:02, established by Harvard in 1916.

Yale took the lead at the start and had a half-length advantage within 50 yards. Harvard pulled up to almost even terms at the quarter mile mark, but the Eli oarsmen gained a boat and a half length before they reached the mile and three-quarters mark and never again relinquished the advantage.

Senators Beat Seattle Indians

SACRAMENTO, June 20.—UP—The Sacramento Senators kept two games ahead of Los Angeles in the close race for the leadership of the Pacific Coast league by beating Seattle in a fast game here tonight 3 to 1.

It was the second victory for Sacramento in five games with Seattle this week.

Ed Bryan was on the mound for the Senators and allowed only five hits, some of which were bunched in the fifth inning to give the Indians their one run.

Sacramento had ammassed its total before the end of the third inning. The game lasted only one hour and 47 minutes.

Wykoff Will Not Enter In Canada Race

LOS ANGELES, June 20.—UP—Frank Wycoff, University of Southern California sprinter, with a mark of 9 2-5 seconds in the 100 yard dash, will not enter the Vancouver, B. C. track meet July 2 to race Perry Williams, Canadian star, it was announced here tonight.

Wycoff said that he did not care to remain in training all summer and that after working at an out-of-door job in a park at Glendale, his home city, he will train for the national A. A. U. games at Pittsburgh on August 23.

There is also a chance, the sprinter said, that he will participate in a meet between British and American athletes at Chicago on August 27.

The decision of Wycoff and his coach Dean Cromwell, came as a disappointment to many track fans, as Williams defeated Wycoff in two dashes at the 1928 Olympic games at Amsterdam.

Jim Stewart, U. S. C. high jumper; Vic Williams, quarter miler and Herman Brix and Kenneth Graumbles, Los Angeles Athletic club athletes, will go to Vancouver. Brix will enter the shot put, and Graumbles the high hurdles.

Wykoff was given the "keys to Glendale" today when he returned from a visit in Des Moines, Ia., where he stopped enroute to California, after establishing his claim to a world's record of 9 2-5 seconds on two occasions — in Boston and Chicago.

Crews Ready For National Championship

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 20—UP— Twenty-three crews, the biggest flotilla ever to enter the intercollegiate association regatta here, were on the Hudson today putting on the finishing touches for the national championships to be held next week.

Washington's three eights, Wisconsin with a varsity only and the M. I. T. freshmen were on the river tonight for the first time.

Al Ulbrickson, the Washington coach, made two important shifts in the boating of his varsity. Wallace Lightfield was sent back from No. 7 to the Jayves, and Richard Odell was given his seat. Alcorn replaced Morris at No. 2 in the second change made by the Huskie mentor.

The Huskies demonstrated that they are in the best of condition, and rowed like champions over the course.

California followed Washington out and Mike Murphy sent his Wisconsin varsity through an early workout. Columbia, Navy, Syracuse, Cornell and M. I. T., the hopes of the east, did not come on the straightaway until sundown.

Stribling Wins By Knockout

CHICAGO, June 20.—UP—Young Stribling, the Georgia cracker, won one of the most spectacular victories of his career tonight when he knocked out Otto Von Porat, Norwegian in the first round of a scheduled ten round bout.

The Georgian gave Von Porat a boxing lesso nduring the first few seconds and after pulling Von Porat's guard down, Stribling suddenly brought a left hook to the chin. Von Porat fell upon his back.

Collapse Of Brick Building Sinks Boat

SEATTLE, June 20.— UP — Charles Drew was tumbled into Lake Union today while cooking breakfast on his houseboat when the side of a brick tile building under construction collapsed, destroying two houseboats. The main avalanche of bricks missed Drew by a few feet when it crashed through the roof of his houseboat, which was anchored beside the dock on which the structure was located.

CORBETT SET FOR BOUT JULY 4

SAN FRANCISCO, June 20.—When Frank Schuler, matchmaker for the Dreamland club here, sets off the fireworks for the big Fourth of July program at Ewing Field here, which features 'Young' Jack Thompson, negro, welterweight champion of the world, and 'Young' Corbett, who has a legitimate claim to the title as the result of two well earned victories over the colored man, the gladiators will be in excellent condition.

Word from the respective battlers received by Schuler the other day indicates the pair would be ready for the bell tomorrow if it were necessary.

For the past ten days, Corbett has been enjoying the life of a mountaineer; hiking and fishing most of the day in a retreat not far from his Fresno home. In the next few days he will arrive at his South San Francisco training quarters, the same place in which he prepared for his successful joust against Jackie Fields, former welterweight champion here last February.

Thompson scored his third stright knockout since winning the title, when he flattened Joe Cardoza, Mexican fighter, at Los Angeles Tuesday night. Jack previously stopped Billy Wells at Omaha and Jimmy Dolan at Portland.

Ray Alvis, Thompson's manager, declared over the long distance telephone after the Cardoza clash, that he never saw Thompson look better. "Jack is boxing better and punching harder than ever," said Alvis, who led Thompson from the humble depths of mediocrity to his present position.

Thompson is due to arrive here from the south the latter part of the week. He will open training quarters immediately following his arrival.

Yuma Valley Bank Fails

YUMA, Ariz., June 20. —UP— Unfavorable condition of the cotton market and a depleted cash reserve today forced the Yuma Valley bank to close its doors half an hour after it opened for business.

State Bank Examiner C. Cox took charge of the bank immediately following the close. John S. Cook, vice president of the institution, declared the bank was solvent and there would be no loss to the depositors.

The bank's statement of March 27 listed total resources as $1,962,772.79, deposits $1,680,447.38, surplus $50,000 and undivided profits $32,325.31. The institution was capitalized at $200,000.

Gang Murder Stirs Chicago In New "War"

CHICAGO, June 20.—UP—Gangland cut loose today with murder, burglary and robbery, while the reorganized police department pondered orders "to drive all crooks from Chicago."

Lorenzo Juliano, powerful alcohol ally of "Scarface" Al Capone, was found dead in an automobile which his assailants had barely failed to push into oblivion on the brink of a water filled quarry.

One robber was killed by the police, another was wounded and one unfortunate policeman got himself robbed when he approached too close to a pair of bandits holding up a pedestrian.

"Iron Man" John Alcock, new police chief, was in the midst of shaking up the department thoroughly meanwhile, and a consolidated bureau had just established to investigate the assassination last week of Alfred "Jake" Lingle, veteran Chicago Tribune reporter.

Juliano was head of the South Side Alcohol syndicate, which operated under authority of Capone, overlord of all Chicago's lawless activities. Police believed that Juliano was killed by cohorts of the Moran-Aielo gang, which had started a battle to the death with the Caponites about a week before Lingle was shot. Ten men, five on each side, were killed in one week, and then the murder of Lingle brought such a bitter cry from the newspapers that the battle lulled temporarily.

RICHARD DIX IN FILM HERE

Richard Dix for the first time in his career plays a film role he created on the stage in "Lovin' the Ladies" all-talking comedy romance opening tomorrow at the Fox-California theater. The role is that of Peter Darby, the electrician in the William Le Baron stage play, "I Love You" produced on Broadway with Dix in the lead.

In 1918 a playwright and his wife dropped into a Times Square theater where Richard Dix was playing They were Mr. and Mrs. William Le Baron, and they were looking for acting material for Le Baron's new play, "I Love You."

Dix was offered a part in "I Love You". He couldn't accept,, for he had a more pressing engagement with Uncle Sam's forces overseas and was scheduled to sail within a week.

Dix was not forgotten. Shortly after the war the play was produced and Richard Dix was given the leading role. In the cast with him were a number of war entertainers, Ruth Terry, John Wesley, Gipsy O'Brien and Dianthe Patterson.

The sequel to all this came eleven years later when William LeBaron had become vice-president in charge of production of Radio Pictures and Richard Dix was the leading male star of the same firm.

"I Love You" was adapted to the talking screen under the title 'Lovin' the Ladies.' Dix became its star. And William Le Baron once again lent a supervisory hand to the production.

Featured with Dix are Lois Wilson, Allen Kearns, Rita La Roy, Renee Macready and a notable cast of supporting players. The production was directed by Melville Brown who has taken advantage of every chance to make the production one of the outstanding comedy hits of the year.

Also on the program is a talking comedy entitled "Chills and Fever" and Fox talking News.

Mystery Film At California Theater Today

Why is the element of mystery so popular?

Why do so many millions, including the greatest names in modern life today, confess to a hidden delight in the wildest of detective stories?

Why do mystery novels, mystery plays, mystery talkies have such a grip on the reader and the theater-goer?

The psychology of entertainment supplies the answer to the questions, according to Kenneth MacKenna, Fox Movietone artist, who scored such a success in "Men Without Women" and who plays the leading role in the melodramatic thriller, "Temple Tower."

As the debonair "Bulldog" Drummond, MacKenna gives a remarkable performance in "Temple Tower," which opens at the Fox California theater today.

The production, a screen version of H. C. McNeile's latest novel about the redoubtable adventurer, has been given a unique treatment which is said to make it as uproarious as it is thrilling. Marceline Day, Henry B. Walthall, Cyril Chadwick A. B. Lane and Yorke Sherwood are in the cast of this Fox Movietone novelty directed by Donald Gallaher.

Also an Our Gang comedy "A Tough Winter."

LADY ATTENDANT

GAMBLER TELLS STORY OF OLD RIVER

At exactly the same time when the new queen of the seas, the liner Bremen, was making new records, ploughing across the mighty Atlantic, the picturesque stern paddle-wheels of fifty years ago were making another sort of record at the Universal Studio during the filming of 'The Mississippi Gambler," Joseph Childkraut's newest starring picture, which is now at the Richmond theater.

The record which the colorful Mississippi boat was making was the film reproduction of steamboat lift as it used to be — the romantic days of the plantation owner and carpet-bagger, when gamblers of exactly the type as played by Schildkraut thronged the twin-stack vessels in an era far more dramatically appealing than even the mighty ocean greyhounds of today.

Famous Squash Player Dies

RUGBY, England — With the death of W. J. B. Gray, people connected with the game of squash rackets will long remember him as one of the foremost squash-racket players of all times.

He was one of six brothers who between them held the rackets championship from 1863 to 1887, except in the years of 1875 to 1877, when it was held by 'Punch' Fairs.

Joe and Walter Gray visited the United States in 1882 and gave a series of exhibition match plays, which did much to encourage squash-rackets in America. The name of Gray is still upheld in the racket "world" by Harry Gray the present professional.

Detours Changed In Nebraska

LINCOLN, Neb. — There will be no "detours" on Nebraska highways this season. At least they will not go by that name, but instead the highway department has decreed the official name shall be "temporary route." The latter name is a better designation psychologically, in its effect on tourists, officals of the department believe.

"No Man's Land" Shows Improvement

BEAVER, Okla. — Twenty years ago Beaver county in the Oklahoma Panhandle was "No Man's Land." but industrious people of this section have converted the area into a prosperous agricultural section with a tax wealth of $9,000,000. Modern farm homes have replaced the old sod houses and dugouts. Barren land has been turned to fertile fields of wheat, barley and broomcorn and pastures for dairy cattle.

Barrier Group Meets June 25

An invitation to attend the next meeting of the Salt Water Barrier association to be held June 25 at the Hotel Carquinez, has been extended to city councilmen, supervisors, mayors and all other public officials and community leaders from many cities of Contra Costa and So'ano counties.

L. E. Mullen, secretary-treasurer of the association, issued the invitations and placed a copy of the organizations' prospects in the hands of the officials, saying:

"You will note that our association is not trying to define just where the barrier is to be built or the type of barrier that may be constructed. We are merely creating the demand for a barrier, leaving it to the state and federal authorities to decide the allocation and other important questions."

STATE TAX ROLL FOR THIS YEAR COMPLETE

SACRAMENTO, June 20.—Taxes aggregating $42,389,702.80 have been levied against public utilities and insurance companies to meet California's revenue needs for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1930. This was announced here today by Fred E. Stewart of Oakland, member of the State Board of Equalization which has just completed assessment of state taxpayers.

Showing a gain of $2,566,902.76 over corresponding taxes for 1929, the new levies mark an increase of 6.44 percent. As the 1929 total was only 3.26 percent larger than that for 1928 the rate of gain now disclosed is almost doubled.

Stewart explains that public utilities have been taxed at various percentages of their gross receipts while insurance companies are assessed on a gross premium basis. The rates used are those fixed by the legislature under constitutional authority.

From an analysis of the operation of these taxes Stewart has concluded that they constitute an effective method of raising funds for meeting the revenue requirements of the state with a minimum of administrative expense.

Illustrating the way in which the revenue derived adapts itself to the public need, Stewart said:

"Because the taxes are based directly on the amount of business done, as California's activities and population increase the revenues grow larger proportionately. All this is automatic so that without changing valuations or rates the tax yield is so regulated as to anticipate with surprising accuracy changing revenue requirements.

"From the standpoint of economy of administration my board has been able to establish an enviable record with this method of taxation. To do all of the work incident upon the assessment of more than $42,389,000 in taxes, we have incurred a total expense of less than one-tenth of one percent."

ISOLATION OF U. S. SCORED BY YOUNG

SAN FRANCISCO, June 20.—UP—An era of good feeling and international friendship, not only in the United States, but elsewhere, is necessary to insure solution of the problem of American surplus, Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric company, said in an address here last night.

"I had hoped that the old doctrine of narrow and self-destroying selfishness was being supplanted in this new day by a conciousness that men helped themselves most by helping others too," Young told delegates to the National Electric Light Association convention.

"Isolation in our politics, exclusion in our tariff, means that we will retain as a just penalty to our own littleness the surplusses which we might otherwise market to the peoples of the world, and which, so long as they stay with us, destroy our own prosperity.

New Spirit

"When our political policy in international affairs becomes cooperative in spirit, which need not involve us in entanglements or alliances; when our economic policy looks to the economic development of the world as a whole and the improvement of living standards and consuming power of peoples everywhere; when our tariffs and treaties are made an evidence of this spirit (because we are under suspicion now);—then we may hope for effective plans for farm relief, for reduction of our surplus of raw materials and manufactured goods, for relief of unemployment, and for what is the most important of all, a better spirit of all nations towards us and towards each other. It cannot live in a world or in a nation where there are great inequalities and injustices caused by man-made barriers."

At the outset of his speech, Mr. Young asked "what surplusses have we to deal with"

Farm Surplus

"First, and most conspicuous of all," he said, "is our agricultural surplus. The proper handling of that problem has a direct bearing on, and one may say, is the key to farm relief.

"Second, we have our raw material surplus from outside the field of agriculture, such as our minerals.

"Third, we have our industrial surplus, which means more manufactured goods than our people can consume. This surplus is not so large or so uncontrollable as our agricultural surplus. It is far more readily financed and lends itself to more orderly marketing. Nevertheless, it is a growing factor of importance in American industry and has a substantial relationship to unemployment.

Export Surplus

"Fourth, we have an exportable surplus of services, such as technical information, managerial and manufacturing experiences, banking, insurance and other services, which can be rendered to other nations without diminishing our useable supply at home.

"Fifth, we have our surplus of earnings over expenditures. They are our savings, which have been constantly increasing, and which we wish to enlarge. Now I am not prepared to say that this surplus of savings is more than we can use at home. The question we have to ask ourselves with reference to savings is whether some part of them, at least, can be more usefully employed in the general interest of America outside the United States than they can be at home."

Young then broadened into a detailed discussion of some of the problems and came to a climax with a criticism of "racketeers in economics and politics."

"The people of America, and particularly farmers, with their agricultural surplus and the wage earners with unemployment, must learn that the solution of their problem lies, not in a narrow isolation of Ameria from the rest of the world, not in an insulation of our economic structure, but in the broadening of our interests, the extension of our aid, the development of our credit machinery, the improvement of the economic conditions of other folks in order that they may buy what we so badly need to sell.

"The enemies of the rapid relization to that desired end in America are suspicion, a narrowness of sympathy and point of view, both political and economic, a tendency to treat other peoples as our economic enemies rather than our friends; a threatening nationalism which in its existence is dangerous to peace and good will. All of these things are too often played upon for selfish ends by racketeers, both in economics and in politics. This country and the world has no use for them. Racketeers in finance are not one whit better — in some cases they are worse — than the gunmen who likewise take their toll from society. At least it may be said of the latter that they show physical courage. And the political racketeer is certainly no better than the rest. He gambles recklessly for his own advantage with destructive policies, both at home and abroad, which ultimately ends in the very economic depression which we seek to avoid. There is no success for American people through destructive policies based on suspicion of another's motives or on envy of his success."

SENATE PASSES RIVER AND HARBOR ACT

According to word received here yesterday from Washington, D. C. the senate yesterday passed the rivers and harbors bill, embracing waterways improvements for every section of the nation.

No record vote was taken, it was reported.

Under the terms of the act, the Richmond harbor will receive the sum of $313,000 for the maintenance of the local harbor, thus doing away with a large expense that was formerly placed upon the hands of the city.

The dispatches said that the Senate approved all additions to the Houst bill.

The bill will now go back to the House for concurrence in these. Quick approval is expected. President Hoover has not made known his attitude toward the legislation.

Total authorizations for appropriations are estimated at about $122,000,000. The measure endorses projects which will cost a far greater total.

George E. Sturtevant, 22, San Francisco youth who was killed early Thursday morning when his car plunged over a 50 foot cliff near Rio Nido, was well known in Richmond.

Sees Snakes In Whiskey, Fined

OBERLIN — While Fred Myers, 51, a farmer, declared he found bull snakes in the liquor making apparatus he had in a cave under his chicken house, officers today held the theory that Myers really saw only worms. But whether they were snakes or worms, Myers must answer to a liquor complaint filed against him by the officers.

NEW DIRECTOR FOR AUTO GROUP

Election of Fred R. Howe, postmaster at Santa Cruz and president of the Santa Cruz chamber of commerce to the board of directors of the California State Automobile association, was announced by D. H. Lafferty, president of the motorists' organization. He succeeds to the vacancy left by the death of William T. Jeter of Santa Cruz and will fill out an unexpired term of a year and a half.

Howe is a leading merchant of Santa Cruz and has been active in civic affairs of the seaside city for many years. He is a former mayor of Santa Cruz and also served the city as a councilman and as commissioner of public health and safety. He is a member of the advisory board of the Santa Cruz branch of the Bank of Italy and is vice president of the Santa Cruz Seaside company.

The new director of the motorists' organization has long been interested in highway development and is widely known as a good roads advocate. He has assisted in many campaigns for financing highway improvements and extensions and served as secretary of the Good Roads committee during the county bond campaign for paving the roads between Santa Cruz and Boulder creek and Watsonville.

The Santa Cruz district, popular touring objective, has been represented on the association directorate for many years. Management of the automobile association is vested in a board of 21 directors civic leaders and successful men of affairs, chosen from and representing all sections of its territory. These directors, who serve without compensation, are elected by the association membership which now totals in excess of 94,000.

Three Lifers Get Pardons

LOS ANGELES, June 20.—UP—An unconditional pardon was issued today by Gov. C. C. Young to Mike Garvey, Harvey Lesher and Phil Dohan sentenced to life terms in San Quentin after they were convicted of first degree murder and robbery.

The governor issued a statement saying that a complete investigation convinced him the men were innocent of the slaying of A. R. Miles, Los Angeles druggist, November 1, 1927.

The men were convicted largely on the testimony of a 10-year old boy, who said he saw them come out of the drug store shortly before the body of Miles was found.

It now develops that the youth was at a motion picture show during the hours he was supposed to have been near the drug store.

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

Women's Clubs Have Their Faults, But—

"WHEN we women began our club work some forty years ago, we were often ridiculed . . . but we disproved the facetious comments."

So Mrs. Lucretia L. Blankenburg, eighty-five-year-old Honorary Vice President of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has just reminded the Federation's 3,000,000 members, at their twentieth biennial convention in Denver. Mrs. Blankenburg surely does not err on the side of overstatement, in her justification of women's clubs.

MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

It seems to us—practically a non-clubwoman, for we haven't time to go once a year to the solitary club of which we are a member—that one of the most civilizing influences in the life of the American woman has been her club work. With all its artificial issues, its stale superficiality, its false motions, yet it has broadened woman's viewpoint, enriched her social and intellectual interests, drawn her out of domestic isolation and into sex fellowship.

If women had not learned to work together in clubs, would they ever have worked together for the vote?

If clubs had not made at least a smattering of culture popular with women, would they be—as it is generally admitted that they now are—the chief support of literature, art and music in the United States?

If through clubs women had not discovered how much can be done by organized concentration on one aim, could the Red Cross have functioned as efficiently as it did during the war—and would women now be achieving an ever more conscious and effective organization for world peace?

Are there not many communities with better playgrounds, better libraries, cleaner dance halls, more beautiful parks and innumerable other civic improvements created and kept going by the tireless energy of the local woman's club?

Finally—and with the knowledge that we have listed but sketchily the good works of the Federation—is it not a fact that many an isolated woman, especially in pre-Ford and pre-radio days, has been brought into sympathetic and helpful contact with her sex through her club membership? Has not this membership increased women's sum total of happiness? We are just enough of a hedonist to insist that, if women's clubs did nothing else besides giving enjoyment to our sex, that would be their own excuse for being.

MAN'S early opposition to the woman's club was based on an outspoken fear that His Royal Highness might be neglected, and on a subconscious dread that in union women would discover their strength (as indeed they have done).

So, as Mrs. Blankenburg says, men jeered that the women couldn't have a club meeting, since they all wanted to talk at once. It was also asserted that they couldn't run a club without intrigue and dissension (the irony of this charge, brought by men against women, appeals to every woman who knows how men's clubs function). It was agreed, finally, that women couldn't enjoy themselves together in a social group from which men were absent.

How triumphantly the woman's club has answered all these early objections! How the members of the clergy, the stern editors, who once argued that women's clubs would "destroy the home"—how these same servants of righteousness have since sought the help of organized clubwomen to defend the home against the saloon, the naughty movie, the dangerous dance-hall! In fact, our chief criticism of the typical woman's club is that it listens too eagerly to the half-baked social reformer; that on Prohibition, for example, its present attitude is simply ill-informed.

Some clubwomen doubtless go to extremes, take too many clubs and take them too seriously. We have never known a woman who sacrificed her husband or child to her club work, but we have known her to sacrifice to it her health and her nerves. Also, we shall never forget that our best beloved aunt once cancelled at a last minute's notice a long postponed and planned-for visit to us—not because it would make her miss the "Club Annual," not even because she would have no time to prepare her part as toast mistress, but simply because a club sister needed our aunt's preparatory coaching on her speech, if the Annual were indeed to be the event of the year!

We feel that a devoted niece—as well as a husband and child—should take precedence of a woman's club; still, we may be prejudiced, and even a personal hurt cannot change our impersonal belief that the virtues and advantages of the woman's club far overbalance its faults and failures. On the whole, it can "point with pride" to its past. In politics and in work for world peace it surely may have a future worth grasping.

CITY MOON

Broadway's brilliance blinds—
It cannot see you,
City Moon . . . too feeble

Only in the shadowy blackness
Of dismal courts and corners
Does your beauty reign.
I found you in a dirty, inky puddle,
Silvery splinters in glistening jet.
You spill silver on the roof,
Transforming its hideous grotesquerie
Into moon-splashed domes and spires . . .
And fire-escapes are phantom stairs . . .
A luminous lunary ladder
Leading far off to the stars.

ANTICIPATION
(AND HOW!)

I am dreaming of the summer.
Of that time of pleasant sports,
When I'll loiter at the seashore
Or besiege the tennis courts.
I'm not thinking of the present
(Not that I'm inclined to shirk!)—
But before that blest vacation
There are three more weeks of work!

Lord, I ask but strength to bear it,
Bear the classroom's crowded heat,
Marking record cards and roll books,
Planning that promotion sheet.
Training still the impish fancies
That in best of children lurk—
For before that blest vacation
There are three more weeks of work:
ALAS!
Yes, three more weeks of work!

On the Motor Vacation

IF you are taking a long motor trip and intend to do your cooking along the way it may be more convenient to carry the coffee and tea in individual bags. Into small cheesecloth bags put the exact amount of coffee you will require for each meal and tie the bag. You can keep them right in the coffee pot. When you make the coffee just put one bag into the coffee pot with the proper amount of water.

For the tea make individual bags. These may be purchased all filled with tea and ready to use. Put a bag into each cup of hot water, each person removing the bag from the cup when the tea is as strong as they like it. The tea bags, also those of coffee, may be wrapped in waxed paper and kept in a paper bag.

With a small portable alcohol stove a cup of tea or coffee may be enjoyed at any time during the long journey and the freshly made beverage will taste so much better than that carried in a thermos bottle.

THE hospitality of Sunday night supper parties was given an impetus last year when fitting frocks were introduced for these special occasions. Tray suppers are easy to serve and are very attractive when the trays are of a definite type, the glass underlaid with gingham charmingly appliqued in fruit designs in pastel tones of green, orchid, peach and jonquil yellow, with doilies and napkins to match.

CA DISH CA DAY

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

There was a time, so culinary historians tell us, when liver and bacon was deemed fit only for breakfast food. And it wasn't considered any great delicacy either. In recent years, however, people have elevated to importance various foods which our grandmothers would have scorned to serve at dinner.

KAREN HOLLIS

Perhaps the fact that dietitians and doctors have harped on the importance of liver in the diet has something to do with the popularity of this food. Perhaps it is well liked just because it is unusual. In any case restaurateurs will tell you that in the past few months there have been steadily increasing demands for liver on menus.

Certainly it is a great relief to the housewife who tries to vary her menus constantly to have this food in favor when the family tires of an unending round of steaks and chops and roasts.

There are many ways of cooking liver, but one of the most delicious is this New Orleans recipe.

LIVER A LA CREOLE

¾ pound calves liver
2 tablespoons suet
1 slice bacon, chopped
4 tablespoons flour
1 sweet pepper
2 cups canned tomatoes
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon cayenne
4 onions
⅛ teaspoon curry powder

Wipe the liver with a damp cloth, skin and remove the veins. Cut in three-quarter inch slices. Dredge with flour. Fry the chopped bacon and suet in a deep saucepan and add the onions and green pepper. When they have cooked, but before they turn brown, add the liver and sear it well on both sides. Add the tomatoes and seasonings, cover closely and let simmer for forty-five minutes. Serve very hot on strips of buttered toast.

Modernizing the Home

Rooms That Men Consider Comfortable

By Alma Zaiss

THESE SIMPLE PIECES ARE BOTH DECORATIVE AND INVITING FOR THE FOYER

Dear Miss Zaiss:

I have just bought some new furniture and if you'll be kind enough to give me a few suggestion of color and placing the furniture, I can't seem to place it correctly in order to make it look comfortable. My husband wants a comfortable room; he does a lot of reading.

Inclosed you will find diagram of my room. My furniture consists of an overstuffed mohair suite, carved frame, the color taupe, reversible cushions. Settee, arm chair and throne chair; wine colored velvet rug with taupe border and a few figures in the border and corners; one davenport table, three end tables, console shape, book trough one carved three-cornered reed table with fern; smoking stand, marble top; wine colored floor lamp, marble base; table lamp of antique blue pottery. Do you think theatrical gauze curtains are suitable, and what color? My walls are paneled in light and dark cream.

I have an empty foyer I would like to furnish. I have two old arm chairs, upholstered backs and seats with wide hand-carved frames. They are real old fashioned chairs, and do you think if I have them upholstered up to date they would be suitable for my foyer, or just what would you suggest? Also, how do you think I should have them upholstered? Please suggest other odds and ends needed to make both rooms look cozy.

(Mrs.) L. H.

Suggestions for Foyer and Living Room

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

FROM the heart of Mrs. H.'s letter we shall take one sentence..."My husband wants a comfortable room as he does a lot of reading"...and around it build the plans for to-day's problem. This as a gentle hint to many, many homemakers who are inclined to forget that the man of the house is often as keenly interested in the decorative scheme of his living room as is his spouse.

We shall begin at the front door, with suggestions for a hospitable foyer that is guaranteed to please most any man. Against the left-hand wall of Mrs. H.'s long, narrow, dark hallway it would be very good to place a shallow dropleaf table which will hold a few books, a bowl of flowers and a lamp when closed...plus hat, gloves and walking stick when the leaf is up; a comfortable arm chair for Father to rest in when waiting for Mother to join him; and a second chair to complete the group.

There should be at least a pair of pictures for so long a wall, and a charming lesson in free balance of accessories, chairs and pictures lies before us in the photograph. Adroitly the tall books and lamp add height and weight to the right side of the table, bringing the smaller chair and picture into perfect balance with the larger pieces on the lefthand side. Remembering the formality, the barren state of many long, narrow halls ...would not this pleasant little setting send a man off in a good humor each morning, and warm his heart with its welcome at night?

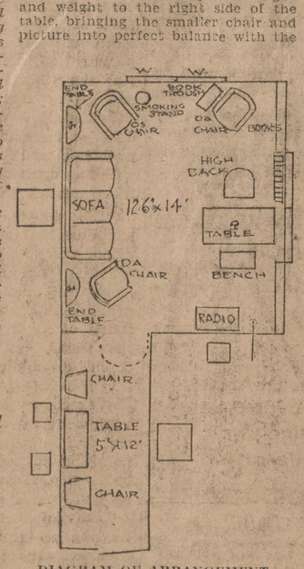

DIAGRAM OF ARRANGEMENT

Answering Mrs. H.'s question about using the two old-fashioned arm chairs for the hall . . . it may be that the chairs will fit in very well indeed. On the other hand, they may be too large and bulky for the narrow space. With the illustration to guide her and to demonstrate the charm of more delicate wooden chairs, Mrs. H. will be able to decide whether or not her arm chairs are suitable. We surmise that she will find them better pieces for the living room, which is in need of two more chairs, if it is to be livable and comfortable.

The diagram shows what has been done in the way of arrangement. Mrs. H. has not mentioned the ownership of many books, but it is probable that she has them and, since her room is so ideally arranged for such a treatment, we have recommended shallow built-in shelves for the four-foot space at either side of the windows. What a joy those shelves will be to Mr. H., who from the day of their installation will haunt the book shops for old favorites and new best sellers to add to his collection. This is a hobby worth riding . . . and mercifully one which adds to the beauty and dignity of the room.

Before the windows we shall place the long davenport table in such a position that it will be comfortable for reading, writing or study. The throne chair, if of the carved wooden back type that is more or less open, will make a dignified seat for one side of the reading table, and on the other side a bench with a loose velvet cushion would add greatly to the room.

If the sofa goes on the left wall with console tables and the chairs indicated at either side, we shall need a piece for the entrance wall. This might be a radio, a folding card table, a commode with a fine mirror above it or, for the time being, merely the largest of the three end tables with a picture hung not too high above it. The book trough may go beside the second of the old-fashioned arm chairs which is indicated to the right of the double windows.

We are sure that the colors now in the room are far too gloomy to please Mr. H. Men like plenty of rich, glowing color . . . not necessarily reds, by the way . . . but restful colors that are inspiring instead of neutral. At present the scheme includes cream walls, wine and taupe in the rug, three pieces upholstered in taupe mohair and the third or accenting color of blue given by the antique pottery lamp.

We will not be happy with the three dull taupe pieces all matched and setting upon the wine and taupe rug, so we may as well plan at once for a slip-cover for the large arm chair. Antique satin or a Croydon stripe in a rich garnet or wine shade in harmony but not matching the carpet would be a good choice for the slip; the seams should be welted or bound in blue and then we may cover the two old-fashioned arm chairs with a fabric having a blue ground (not too sombre) with a small indefinite pattern in soft shades including a bit of gold. A deep burnt gold cushion could be used on the bench and a pair of gold pillows on the sofa, which should be helped to greater interest by a colorful picture on the wall above it . . . perhaps a reproduction of an old flower painting, a landscape in autumn colors, or a seascape bringing out in brighter tones the blues in the room.

Gold theatrical gauze will do for summer curtains. They should be made very full, using two curtains at each group of windows so that they meet at the centre and are caught back at the sides to give the effect of one large window. This treatment is good for windows measuring about two and a half feet each in width. For the fall and winter season we should like to see in this room glass curtains of handsome printed linen having a deep ivory ground with design in reds and golds and blues. If the linen curtains are used, Mrs. H. should turn the reversible cushions of the three-piece suite on the plain side to avoid the use of too much pattern.

The blue lamp with a simple parchment shade can be placed on the reading table; the wine-colored shade on the standing lamp should be exchanged for a gold or honey-colored shade and on the consoles at either side of the sofa it would be nice to have lamps with pottery bases in tones of blue.

This completes our plan keyed to the man's desire for comfort and livability...which, above all other qualifications, are the most important in his judgment of the successful living room. With the addition of color in upholstering and curtains and the books in their many-hued bindings, this room which sounds so drab in its original state can be made wonderfully attractive...a hearty, comfortable room where at the end of a difficult day a man may smoke and read and lounge and dream until long past time to go to bed!

The Beauty Shop

Seeing Yourself

THE first step toward happiness is knowing yourself. And the first step to beauty is seeing yourself. So very few people do see themselves. If they did they would not dress the way they do and make up the way they do and arrange their hair the way they do.

FRANCES OLIVIER

But the problem is how is a body to see herself? Most mirrors lie, and even the most excellent of mirrors fails to give a complete picture. A woman studying herself before a mirror either poses or she wears the serious, critical expression of one who is studying herself. She is not natural. She is not herself.

For purposes of self-study there is nothing quite so helpful as a good photograph. By a good photograph we mean an honest photograph—a genuine likeness. A group of photographs in various poses is even better for purposes of self-study.

Photographs, as you must have observed, are wonderfully revealing things even when they are poor. A poor photograph may not do justice to one's good points, but it will emphasize the bad points in a most helpful manner for the self-critic. Lines in the face become grooves; anything but an upright posture becomes an ugly stoop. An unbecoming style of hairdressing is readily apparent, because it is seen from all sides. The least droop in the chin becomes a conspicuous fault, and so on.

One should not be discouraged by an unflattering photograph. One should rather be encouraged to get busy renovating, if necessary, regenerating one's self. The thing to do is to go over the insulting picture objectively, marking spots that need attention, and then giving them that attention without delay.

Poor photographs being so plentiful and self-operating cameras being everywhere, there is nothing expensive about this method of checking up one's appearance is there? It's rather fun, too. Especially when you go at the job with a high purpose and a light heart and lots of will, and after renovating yourself you take some more photos. You know—just to prove whether or not there is any real improvement. And of course there will be an improvement!

The Care of the Gas Range

DOES your gas range give satisfactory service? If not, a thorough cleansing may be all that is needed to restore it to good condition.

Never let the burners become clogged with dirt or spilled food. At least once a month they should be removed and boiled in soapy water to which a little washing soda or lye has been added. After boiling they should be scrubbed with a stiff bristled brush.

Before washing the enameled parts of the gas range, wait until the surface has cooled, otherwise cracking may result. Go over the range with a soapy cloth every day and wipe up immediately all spilled foods. Stubborn discolorations will readily yield to a little baking soda or scouring.

Avoid gritty cleansers. In time they will wear off the glazed surface of the enamel and leave it porous. This porous surface is absorbent and is more difficult to keep clean than the smooth, glazed surface.

When cleaning the gas range do not neglect the water heater and other appliances. Dust and corrosion on the coils act as insulators keeping the heat from reaching the water.

TELLING THE WORLD

THERE OUGHT TO BE A LAW

A SHORT time ago an S O S call stopped all broadcasting while ex-Senator Jim Reed was denouncing the radio monopoly. Not long before that another shipwreck broke in on Amos and Andy's talk. This sort of thing has got to stop. If mariners insist on getting into trouble, they will have to do it during the morning hours.

There was something queer about that Reed interruption. The Missouri firebrand had just got his thorax vibrating in high when the microphone went dead. Investigation showed but one station heard the S O S call and it was pretty feeble, at that. No liner was ever reported in distress. The best authorities now believe Senator Reed's marine disaster consisted of an outboard motor boat running into a lobster-pot.

The Amos and Andy interruption was a real collision. But it does seem a ship's captain could have put off calling S O S for a few minutes longer till the Fresh Air Taxi office had closed for the night.

A ship's captain who would never think of butting into a personal conversation will broadcast a call for help in the middle of an Amos and Andy program just because his boat is listing forty-five degrees. He never stops to think of the inconvenience his selfishness causes to 20,000,000 persons on land. What this country really needs is a seagoing book on etiquette.

Not all our radio stars have been thus insulted by excited sea captains. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman has broadcast for six consecutive years and has never yet been interrupted by a steamboat. Not even to ask him a question.

Graham McNamee's larynx has never been submerged in the air by a ferryboat sinking although it is at times when Graham is broadcasting we have felt like rushing out and tipping over a canoe.

Floyd Gibbons's trotting tonsils have never been cut off from circulation because of an aquatic smash. But Floyd always talks on the radio like he was afraid the Mauretania would strike an iceberg before he got through.

Then you take a fight broadcast like Sharkey vs. Schmeling. Suppose a ship found its bulkheads leaking just when Sharkey had Maxie groggy and reeling against the ropes. What would happen if the skipper sent out a call for help before the final gong? We don't know, but we'd like to make a little side bet that six revenue cutters would rush up and shell his ship till it sank.

When a heavyweight title is in the balance is no time to send out S O S shrieks. The radio audience demands service!

We have also often thought of the consequences if an S O S was cut loose while Rudy Vallee was crooning. It is our personal opinion that it would take at least another Battle of Jutland to yank Rudy off the air. We may be wrong.

But if a ship ever rams a rock while Rudy is megaphoning a croon, it is just going to be that ship's tough luck.

If a plea for help ever comes in during Rudy's yeast cake hour, we are in favor of shooting back another S O S message—Sink Or Swim.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."
Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

SHOW of SHOWS
by WILLARD KEEFE

Copyright 1929, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"Show of Shows," the Warner Bros. Vitaphone picture was the source for the material on which these stories are based.

SYNOPSIS

Harry Cronk, Hollywood press agent, introduces Leo Hanlon to Queenie Quinn, script girl. Queenie lands Leo an extra job in "Show of Shows," a musical revue produced on the Warner lot. Stars, directors, cameramen, "grips" and extras scurry through his daily life. On Queenie's advice, Leo sets out to study picture production. He meets Chester Morris, the actor, who makes a tour of the studio with him. Queenie continues to play a leading role in Leo's "conquest" of Hollywood.

INSTALLMENT EIGHT

Leo's quest of education was suddenly interrupted to permit him to resume his acting, as he was fond of calling it. The casting director instructed him that he was to be a member of Lupino Lane's ballet "Ballet?" It didn't seem altogether right to Leo.

"Yeah," returned the casting man, "a comic ballet. You're a bum."

That seemed a little rough. "Now, after all, Mr. ——," he began.

"You play a bum, I mean, brother," Leo was told.

"Oh, that's different," Grianing, he added. "I trust this is no inspired casting."

"How should I know," said the guardian of the hiring line, "I only work here. Stage 11."

In this hobo fantasy, which rejoiced in the title of "Spring is Here," Leo came under the direction of Larry Ceballos. With a group of other dancers, who, like himself, were dressed in frayed and patched garments, he was obliged to throw himself into various fawn like poses. Meantime, Lane, a British comedian who appeared to be constructed largely of rubber slung himself into a painfully acrobatic dance.

Later with the valuable existence of a stuffed snake about fifteen feet in length, the comic exercised his pantomimic gift and, Leo decided, a considerable gift it was. The balleting bums, hideous in their beards and rags, lent themselves whole-heartedly to his support to the muted strains of a tender song it was fun, as the ballet bums were privileged to hurt themselves about with fine abandon, so long as they heeded the music.

After the scene was shot Leo managed to lure Mr. Ceballos into a chat. In answer to Leo's somewhat ill-disguised questions, Ceballos said he thought it likely that Jack Haskell would use him in the "Lady Luck" number.

"He rather likes your hoofing," added the director.

"This 'Lady Luck' Number—that's a pretty important part of the revue, isn't it?" asked Leo.

"Yes, sir. None bigger."

Lady Luck—Alexander Gray and Betty Compson.

"The finale, I've heard."

"The finale is nothing you're likely to figure in," said Ceballos, smiling. "That's reserved exclusively for the stars. All seventy-seven of them."

"Really?" said Leo. "What's it like?"

"Don't be curious," advised Ceballos. "Be surprised like the public. It's the biggest flash since the first rainbow, no kidding."

"I'll wait," Leo promised.

It early became clear to Leo that he had entered what was beyond dispute the most pretentious number of the revue. It was fortunate that he had served his apprenticeship in less ambitious pageants. Fortunate, too, in that he was but one of what seemed to him to be countless thousands of dancers, though there were actually a mere three of four hundred. His first three or four days of rehearsal were devoted largely to finding his way through the crowds.

When, finally, the set was revealed for final rehearsals and shooting Leo concluded that all the other sets and costumes he had seen during his explorations of the lot were mere appetizers for the present sight. Both Max Parker and Earl Lulck had gone prodigal with a vengeance. Mr. Luick's costumes, he was certain, had occasioned raids on silk mills, jewelry shops and several other industries the world over. Their colors were breath-taking. Cloth of gold flowed like water. In a word, it was the most arresting spectacle that was ever assembled for a camera.

No less dazzling was the setting. Required to accommodate the hundred of dancers, the scores of principals and the huge Negro singing chorus, it was necessarily enormous. Through wall length windows in the rear could be seen the gorgeously blue sea. The dancers, in varied costumes, were deployed upon steps which extended from the rear wall down to an expansive floor space. These stairs reached completely across the stage.

This was not merely a flash number; it was, indeed, a minor show in itself and was referred to about the lot as "The Show of 'Show of Shows'." It was formed of fifteen separate acts, arranged in a sequence that mounted easily and surely to its colorful climatic spectacle.

The heads of the revue staff were certain that this final episode would assure "Show of Shows" undisputed leadership over all the films of its era. The scene was builded on the song "Lady Luck," the work of Ray Perkins whose hit melodies rise as joyously from a balalaika strummed on the Russian steppes as from the instruments of Broadway's favorite orchestra.

To Betty Compson and Alexander Gray this song was intrusted, and the first of the rehearsals testified to shrewd casting. Miss Compson, long a film favorite, brought to the talkies a sweet and tuneful voice which lent itself charmingly to recording. Mr. Gray was quick to establish himself as the same kind of singing juvenile he had been with Mr. Ziegfeld and other Broadway managers.

They sang the duet beautifully. At the finish they were joined by the colored singers, as the show girls, glamorous in their bejeweled costumes, performed their tableaux on the stairway. Throughout the singing other principals emerged from the wings and stood with the singers. Gradually the stage became a fantastic, colored painting that seemed to flow rhythmically with the music. From above descended three jeweled chandeliers, three lovely girls, their arms outstretched, flung against the bowl of each lamp.

As the singers' voice blended in the final triumphant and melodious note a jeweled curtain descended and blotted out the stage.

Somebody issued an order to eat.

BOYS AWARDED HONORS AT CAMP

By JIMMIE SMITH

CAMP PIONEER, June 19—(By Mail), With but one day left before their two weeks vacation comes to an end, the boys of Camp Pioneer are now able to gaze back in retrospect upon their achievements and experiences during the past two weeks.

The Red Rag, the greatest honor to be presented to Y. M. C. A. campers, excepting the White Rag, was received by Ralph Shallenberger, Bill Fowell, Clarence Poulsen, Gene Robertson and Bill Black.

This rag is given to campers over 16 who show the proper spirit in camp activities. The possession of brown and blue rags is necessary to the possession of a red one. Other members of this year's camp who received red rags previous to this year are Willie Hillier, Stanley Poulsen, Louis Ball, Cecil Bowman, Bob Miller, and Jimmie Smith.

The white rag, presented to youths and men who have rendered special services in their camp or community, are possessed by R. E. Carlson, camp director, and E. G. Harlow, devotional director.

Brown rags, which are presented to worthy campers between the ages of 14 and 16 or to deserving owners of blue rags, were received by Leonard and Howard Miller. This emblem was possessed by Bob Drexel, a member of this year's camp.

The Blue Rag, the first step in the rag ladder, was received this year by Ted Faust, Glenn Adams, Elmer Johnson, Paul Olejnik, Lloyd Zumwalt, Francis Wilson, Jerome Waite, Blair Spires, Harold Armstrong, and Freddy Ball. A blue rag was already owned by Ed Bouquet.

Letter P's have been presented to Glenn Adams, Francis Wilson, Howard Miller, Leonard Miller, Lloyd Zumwalt and Jerome Waite.

Another phase of camp activities in which progress has been made is swimming.

Ed Farrow graduated from the pollywog or non swimmers' class. The following boys entered the A class from the B's: Jerome Waite, Harold Armstrong, Glenn Adams, Francis Wilson, Walt Gillan, and Blair Spires.

Prizes will be awarded tomorrow night to the tent that has built the longest lasting campfire and the tent that has won the inspection banner the greatest number of times. All the old camp songs will be sung and all the old campfire customs observed at tomorrow night's gala campfire program.

Camp will conclude Saturday morning when the members of the 1930 Camp Pioneer must make their way back to the spring beds of civilization.

What You Should Know

tempt to barter public office.

Most of this work of putting on the "screws" has been done under cover, but information has leaked out to all sections of the county, and the voters are up in arms.

The public is an absolute believer in fair play. The voter believes that he is the one to determine by his ballot who shall occupy office, and who shall not occupy office.

The voter believes that an office holder is responsible to him

The RECORD - HERALD believes the voters of the county are entitled to receive these facts, it believes it is a duty this paper owes the general public.

This is not the first time that the RECORD-HERALD has taken up single-handed the cudgel for the public.

It will be remembered that a few years ago in Richmond, it exposed conditions that existed at the municipal docks when they were being handled by the old Richmond Terminal Corporation. It showed this corporation was taking everything in sight, and the city had gone nearly $40,000 behind during its regime.

This expose and the placing of the facts before the public made possible a change in conditions, it made possible a new deal, it made possible the development of the waterfront, which was then at a standstill.

This fight of the RECORD-HERALD alone is responsible for this great change. It received no aid from either individual or civic bodies.

The result of this fight has brought industries such as the Felice & Perrelli Canning company, the Ford Motor company, the McMillan company, and the location of a fruit exchange and packing plant, the announcement of which was just made this week.

The political fight that is just opening is to decide whether the people of the county are the masters or the servants. The election coming will determine this question.

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Rear Admiral Byrd has added another mark on his record of achievement.

* * * *

And when Byrd and his crew of 67 men arrived in New York City the other day the whole town went wild.

* * * *

Insinuations were cast by a theater man that Admiral Byrd and his crew purposely delayed their arrival in the United States in order that the motion picture they made while in the Polar regions could be announced.

* * * *

However, Admiral Byrd's friends declare that he waited in Panama until his crew arrived there in "The City of New York," their expedition boat.

* * * *

Byrd also disproved the report of Amundsen that he had found a stretch of land which he named Carman's Land.

* * * *

However, Byrd declared that Amundsen could not be blamed for this, as the ice mirages in the polar regions play very strange tricks.

* * * *

The Richmond Y. M. C. A. will close today and Sunday one can expect to see a large group of Richmond boys, sunburned, tanned and homesick return home.

* * * *

From all reports received from the camp, the boys are having a wonderful time and will be sorry that the camp is closing.

track to iBeber in Lassen county at a cost of $3,000,000.

From its main line at Keddie in Plumas county the Western Pacific will extend its system 112 miles north, joining the Great Northern at Bieber. The work will cost about $10,000,000.

New Outlet

A third project planned by the two companies will provide a new outlet for rich timber country in Modoc and Siskiyou counties.

A logging road now operating the 33 miles between Hambone, Siskiyou county, and a point five miles west of the proposed Great Northern extension, will be acquired by the two companies. From Lookout on that extension they will construct a five mile track bridging the gap and convert the logging road into a common carrier.

At Hambone the road to be converted meets the McCloud River railroad, which connects ith the Southern Pacific at Mt. Shasta, 50 miles west.

The commission suggested that the Southern Pacific and Great Northern enter into agreement for joint use of the S. P. tracks from Klamath Falls south to approximately the state line. This, the commission pointed out, would obviate some 24 miles of duplication and save the Great Northern about $800,000.
